

Cell-type contributions differ across cortical layers

Open circles mark the highest-contributing cell type in each layer; grey cells were excluded by the external layer mask.